	[Coorg was conquered in 1834 by a force under Brigadier Patrick Lindsay C. B. The assault on Buck is described as follows by Mr. Lewis Rice in the third volume of his Gazetteer on Mysore and Coorg (page 179).
	The Northern column, under the Command of Col. G. Waugh, was composed of one brigade 6 pr. guns from Bellary, 300 rank and file and head quarters H. M. 55th Regt., 9th Regt. N. I. 31st Regt. L. I., rifle Company of 24th Regt. N. I. and 200 Sappers and Miners. It marched on the 1st April from Hosakota to Sanivársante. On passing the Coorg boundary at the river Hémavati, the enemy's advanced posts had retreated and no molestation was offered until the force reached Kodlipet, where an armed body of 200 men occupied an entrenched high ground, but on their flanks being turned they speedily fell back, and the advanced guard of the English encountered only one more slight opposition at Mudravalli, which was as speedily overcome.
	A far different resistance the troops met on the following day, when they were to join the Eastern Column at Haringi. They had scarcely proceeded a few hundred yards beyond their encamping ground, when they found the road blockaded with felled trees, which rendered their progress exceedingly difficult and slow. As the column approached a village in a wood near the base of the pass in which the enemy's principal position was situated, a feeble fire was opened, which was readily silenced. But the stockade, known as the Buck Stockade, was exceedingly strong; outside, protected by thick bamboos and trees and surrounded with a deep ditch, and inside, built of mud walls faced with stones and pierced with innumerable loop holes which commanded the approaches in every direction. The intrepid Coorgs who held it were commanded by Madanta Appachu, (the late Head Sheristadar who died in 1876) a fine old Coorg, of tall stature and martial bearing, who ever since the British accession was a most loyal and devoted servant of Government. Determined to carry it by assault, as the stockade barred their advance, the troops, under Major Bird of the 31st Light Infantry as field officer of the day attempted every means of attack for four hours and a half, during which they were exposed to a most severe and raking fire; but in vain. A misdirected flank movement of H. M. 55th Regt., under Col. Mill proved equally unsuccessful. Colonel Mill was shot dead on the spot, likewise Ensigns Robertson of the 9th N. I., and Babington of the 31st N. I. In this most unfortunate affair about forty-eight were killed, including the 3 officers and 118 wounded].

	4th July.—Ralph Horsley, Esq., of the Madras Civil Service. Born at Courtabun on the 1st July 1831. Murdered at Bellary, where he was Acting Head Assistant Collector.
	(This murder took place in the whist room of the present Club Bungalow, then a private house, into which the deceased and his younger brother, W. D. Horsley, a student at College, had recently moved. The situation was lonely, the house standing by itself and being commanded on three sides by hills. The details of the occurrence appear to be as follows. On the night of the 4th July, at about half past twelve, Mr. Ralph Horsley was heard to call to his servants sleeping in the verandah, and was found a few minutes later lying dead in his writing room, which opened out of the bed room. An office box was then missing from its usual place under the cot, and was subsequently discovered broken open on the rocks some 300 yards away, the only object stolen being the silver handle of a seal. On an examination of the deceased's body, it was seen that the wound, a stab in the back must have been sufficient to cause instantaneous death. No trace of the murderers was, however, discoverable. The peons and servants had apparently heard nothing to attract their attention although four of them were sleeping in the front verandah of the house. An inquest was held and an exhaustive enquiry instituted by Mr. C. R. Pelly, the Collector, but the crime remains a mystery to this day. It seems probable that robbery and not murder was the motive of the intruders, and that Mr. Horsley was stabbed while endeavouring to prevent the theft of his cutcherry box. Several men were arrested at the time on suspicion, but were subsequently discharged. Two years later a false clue to the murderer was given in the town of Cuddapah and in May 1864, at Chitaldroog, one Honoora or Honoorga, a well known thug, was charged with the crime on the evidence of informers, who deposed to his confession of the murder. It does not, however, appear that the charge was brought home; although the confession as reported corresponds in many of its details to the actual occurrence.)

	TOMB AT THE EAST FORT GATE. Under the wall at the East Fort Gate stands a tomb, said to cover the remains of a French Engineer. The tradition is that when Hyder Ali took possession of Bellary from its Poligar in 1769, he employed the services of this man to build the upper and lower Fort, but at the completion of the work, hanged him near the Fort Gate, because it was discovered that the opposite rock was the higher and commanded the Fort. A few years ago, when a new road leading to the gate was under construction, the Mahomedans of Bellary made a successful appeal for the preservation of this grave, saying that it contained the remains of a saint of their own faith. The tomb is certainly built in Mussulman fashion, and some doubt is thrown on the legend of the French Engineer's fate by the fact that a similar story is told of other fortresses built by Hyder or his son. For instance, the tale connected with the fort at Hosur in Salem District may be cited. It runs as follows. Captain Hamilton (or according to others Stevenson) a British officer, then in captivity, is said to have been employed by Tippu Sultan to construct the fortifications, with the assistance of a midshipman, also a captive. Unfortunately, the position chosen happened to be overlooked by a neighbouring hill, and Tippoo on learning of this mistake, at once issued orders for the execution of the two prisoners. The Englishmen had, however, during their stay at Hosur, been on very friendly terms with the inhabitants of the place; and so great was the sympathy evinced for them that no one could be found willing to put them to death, or even to lend a weapon for the purpose. After much difficulty, the only implement that could be procured was a small shoemaker's knife, and with this instrument the prisoners were beheaded, Hamilton, stipulating that the younger man should die first. Tradition adds that at the time of execution, a native maistry, who had long worked under Hamilton, begged him to leave him some memento. Hamilton, however, had absolutely no property of any kind; but gave the man an old pair of compasses. A few years ago, an English officer, while visiting Hosur, was struck by observing a native carpenter at work with a pair of compasses (an unusual circumstance) and asked him where he had obtained them. The workman answered that the compasses were an heirloom in his family, and had been given to one of his ancestors by some European officer, pointing in proof of his assertion to the letters J. H. scratched on one side. The story goes on to say that in a field named by this workman, two skeletons were found, which appear to have been decapitated. (About the year 1874, an article on this subject entitled "A Pair of Compasses" appeared in the Madras Athenaeum, the author being Mr. S. D. White.)

	RAMANDROOG (British Sanitarium in Sondur State).
	This cemetery is situated on the brow of the hill, by the old fort bastion, adjoining the barracks, and is a square enclosure with gray concrete walls. The inscriptions are mostly in a very precarious condition; only 19 being legible out of 22. There are in addition 36 nameless heaps of earth, presumably the graves of private soldiers. Two of these seem to cover the remains of children.
1855	April 24th.—Walter St. Clair, son of Assistant Apothecary John Middleton, and Ann, his wife. "Affection mourns while heaven rejoices."
	(Two flat slabs, one on either side of this tomb, are hopelessly illegible).

(This grave adjoins that of A. G. Carroll and is situated at the far end of the cemetery. The slab is broken and the inscription, running round an Irish cross which surmounts the headstone, is merely chiselled into the stone and now rapidly becoming illegible).

1854	William Clavering, aged 22 years. The circumstances of his death are as follows:—He landed from England in May 1853, and in the latter part of 1854, was engaged in laying the Telegraph line from Bellary to Secunderabad. When on the point of joining the working party, which was spanning the Tungabhadra River some few miles above Hampasaugar, he was attacked by cholera and died in the Hospet Traveller's Bungalow. He was a man of good birth, and closely connected with the family of Claverings in Northumberland, and had he lived a few months longer, would have succeeded to a Baronetcy. A short time after his death, a Government enquiry was instituted and a report sent in by Mr. Brunton, at that time Superintendent of Telegraphs. Mr. Jones was present at the time of the death; and Mr. C. Dawson, now Store-keeper at Kurnool, was also a member of the working party. An old man of the Korava caste, who dug the grave, is still alive in Hospet. According to him, four Europeans, who were staying at Hospet, went to Huligi (in the Nizam's dominions) to see the shrine of the deity. While there, one of the party was attacked by cholera, and returned to Hospet very ill. He died at one o'clock in the Traveller's Bungalow and was buried in his hat and clothes under a banyan tree. Local rumour says that he tried to prevent the hook swinging festival at Huligi, and was visited by the wrath of the goddess in consequence. In 1893 a slab was placed over the spot indicated by the grave digger, in an open piece of ground some 40 yards to the south of the Traveller's Bungalow, beneath two banyan trees.
1877	18th January.—Hannah Herminie, wife of Cecil Henry Thomas Norfor, Executive Engineer. Aged 27 years. Christ will gather in his own To the place where he is gone, Where their heart and treasure lie, Where our life is hid on high. Day by day the voice saith "come, Enter thine eternal home." Asking not if we can spare, This dear soul it summons there. Had he asked us, well we know We should cry, "Oh spare this blow; Yes, with streaming eyes should pray, Lord, we love her; let her stay." But the Lord doth not amiss, And since he hath ordered this, We have naught to do but still Rest in silence on his will. This tomb, a handsome slab with surrounding rails, is situated in a tope in the open piece of ground adjoining the Head Assistant Collector's Cutcherry.
	BALLAHUNSI.
1893	22nd November.—Private Brown, of the Cheshire Regiment, who was accidentally drowned while bathing in the river Tungabhadra. His body was found on the bank of the river at Hampasaugar, and in accordance with the desire of the officer in command, was carried to Ballahunsi, where the Regiment had encamped on the 25th November. It was buried in field No. 254, and a mound of earth raised to mark the spot. (The bodies of other European soldiers are said to be interred in the same field).

1846	28th March.—Mary, wife of Lieut. J. Jackson, 14th Regt. N. I., who died of cholera, in camp on the Toon(gabhadra?). The stone is broken to pieces, and the inscription illegible in several places.
MADHAVARAM.
There is a tomb, on the hill, near the site of the old Traveller's Bungalow, which is said to cover the remains of an English officer. The only letters now visible are Lieut. and Jul(ius?), but report says that the Lieutenant Colonel of a Regiment died here, while on the march from Bellary to Secunderabad. The date may be about 1840 or 1850, as the Bungalow was abandoned soon after the latter year.
PEDDA TUMBALAM.
A tomb in this village is said to be that of an English boy, of 10 or 12 years of age, attached to some Regiment. An inscription, written on a wooden plank, has been illegible for the last twenty years. The grave is situated to the west of the public road.
